Sector: The Space Economy

Space, in recent years, has increasingly established itself as a fundamental resource for Earth monitoring, telecommunications and geo-localization services. Satellite services and the data they generate become assets that, when combined with the potential of the digital economy, are able to anticipate the needs of our society: space technologies increasingly influence our lives in a positive way. Innovation is the key to make the knowledge and technologies developed within space projects accessible to commercial, industrial and social sectors.

Investment Objective

Global equity fund (mainly US and Europe) dedicated to the space economy. Technological advancement and the sharp drop in the cost of launching into orbit open up a new world for global telecommunications alongside the themes of 5G, Internet of Things and SmartCity. The fund is advised by an international scientific technical committee.

Product Characteristics

- Active and dynamic management
- Pureplay investments in the Space Economy sector
- Support the UN Sustainable Development Goals
- International scientific and technical advisory team
